

that Defendant had an inappropriate sexual relationship with a patient that lasted several months.

- B. Two investigators with the Oklahoma State Board of Medical Licensure and Supervision interviewed the victim, A.N.L. During the interview, A.N.L. stated that she had seen Defendant approximately eight (8) years ago, but stopped seeing him at that time because she thought he was “weird.”
- C. In the spring of 2013, A.N.L. began attending a church where Defendant was a deacon. In addition, her 12-step sponsor was also seeing Defendant. A.N.L. had softened her opinion of Defendant and decided to resume seeing Defendant as her psychiatrist.
- D. During that time, Defendant made numerous diagnoses of A.N.L. including Dissociative Identity Disorder and PTSD. A.N.L. had previously disclosed to Defendant her years of sexual abuse, emotional abuse and isolation.
- E. The psychiatric treatments progressed normally until the latter part of 2013. At that time Defendant began touching A.N.L. in progressively inappropriate ways which are indicative of “grooming” a victim of sexual abuse. Defendant began by offering and providing innocuous touching, like foot and back rubs, and the parties would touch bare or stocking feet on a shared ottoman and would dance. This progressed to removing clothing during later sessions and culminated in sessions being done completely nude and engaging in various sexual encounters.
- F. Further, as the sexual nature of the appointments progressed, the length of the appointments would also increase. The appointments went from being the traditional one-hour sessions, to being two and three hours in length. Also indicative of grooming and manipulation was Defendant’s use of personal information provided to Defendant from his patient through the course of treatment.
- G. It is apparent from both victim statements, as well as Defendant’s admissions to investigators, that as A.N.L. would become uncomfortable with actions being taken, Defendant would not push the boundaries until A.N.L. became accustomed to the current level of behavior. Further, Defendant would also use his intimate knowledge to manipulate his patient into this continuing and progressing behavior over time. Defendant’s actions were seductive, sexually demeaning and contrary to the best interests of his patient and in violation of the laws and rules governing the practice of medicine in the state of Oklahoma.
